

Regulations on media consolidation should be left in place. Dissemination (not consolidation) of information, and presentation of various viewpoints are essential if news is to remain anything more than propaganda. To sacrifice thoroughness and openness for the sake of economy and profit is un-American. At least, it should be.